The City did not make a representation that it would not enforce retroactively through Tuesday. In fact, because no such representation was made, after the argument, the parties had a discussion about the possibility of an extension of time in the briefing schedule in exchange for agreeing to not retroactively enforce. I then discussed that option with my clients and reported back to you the result this morning.

Melanie,

Yesterday, the City represented to Judge Koeltl that 1) the City was not in a position to enforce the law for a couple of weeks and 2) that the City would not enforce the law retroactively as against Airbnb until at least through Tuesday. Has the City changed its position? Does the City now intend to enforce retroactively against Airbnb to the effective date of the law?

Thanks,

Mylan

Subject: follow up

Hi Counselors

I am writing to follow up on our conversation after argument regarding the possibility of agreeing to not conduct retroactive enforcement in exchange for additional time to brief the TRO. My client has not authorized me to make such agreement.

Thank you.
